[PICTURE: A warm watercolor illustration of a small village along the Nile River in ancient Egypt. Simple mud-brick houses with flat roofs line the riverbank. An Eritrean/East African family with warm brown skin and dark curly hair stands together — a father, a mother with a round pregnant belly, and a young girl named Miriam. Golden sunset light bathes the scene. Palm trees sway gently in the background.]

ENGLISH:

A long time ago, in the land of Egypt, there lived a family who loved God very much. The mother and father were kind and good. They had a daughter named Miriam, and soon a new baby was coming.

TIGRINYA:

Ab qedem Ab Gbtsi Hanti sdra bet ntsfeqr Amlak bhwti tnebre. Ab'ye n Ad'ye Hyanot n bguHat eywm. Hanti gal Miriam zstsmA neyrwm, Hshsh dma Hants Htsn tmetse neyre.

(Pronunciation: sdra bet = family, Amlak = God, Htsn = baby)

[PICTURE: A watercolor of a cruel-looking Egyptian Pharaoh sitting on a golden throne, pointing his finger in anger. He wears a tall crown and fancy robes. Around him stand scared-looking soldiers holding spears. The palace walls are decorated with hieroglyphics. The colors are darker here — deep reds and blacks — showing danger.]

ENGLISH:

But the king of Egypt, called Pharaoh, was very mean. He was scared that too many Hebrew babies were being born. So Pharaoh made a terrible rule: all baby boys must be thrown into the river!

TIGRINYA:

Gn nGuS Gbtsi, Frown ztstswuE, bhwti Hfur eyu neyru. Bzu Htsanat Ebrwyan kmwldu frhwu. Sle'zi Frown Hanti Asfokhay Amri Amsie: kulu wdu Htsanat Ab ruba ksdedwu!

[PICTURE: A tender watercolor scene inside a simple mud-brick home. A beautiful East African mother with braided hair holds a newborn baby boy wrapped in a soft cloth. Her face glows with love but also shows worry. Young Miriam peeks from behind a curtain, smiling at her baby brother. Soft candlelight fills the room with golden warmth.]

ENGLISH:

Then the baby was born! He was a beautiful little boy. His mother held him close and looked at his sweet face. She loved him so much. But she was also very afraid because of Pharaoh's terrible rule.

TIGRINYA:

Dhrzi Htsn tewlede! Hanti mrmr wdu Htsn eyu neyru. Ad'yu brHrHa Hzya gtsHu rAdyat. bhwti tfetwu. Gn bsbe Asfokhay Amri Frown bhwti frhya neyre.

(Pronunciation: tewlede = was born, mrmr = beautiful, frhya = she was afraid)

[PICTURE: A watercolor showing the mother hiding her baby in a dark corner of the house for three months. She covers him with soft blankets. Miriam helps by keeping watch at the door. The mother presses a finger to her lips — shhhh! Outside the window, Egyptian soldiers march past. The scene is tense but loving.]

ENGLISH:

For three whole months, the brave mother hid her baby boy at home. Every time soldiers walked by, she covered him with soft blankets. Miriam helped keep watch by the door. They had to be very quiet!

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A detailed watercolor of the mother sitting by the riverbank, carefully weaving a basket from tall papyrus reeds. Her skilled hands bend and twist the green reeds together. She paints thick tar on the outside to make it waterproof. Miriam sits beside her, handing her strips of papyrus. The Nile River sparkles blue-green in the background.]

ENGLISH:

The baby was growing bigger and harder to hide! So the mother had a plan. She picked tall reeds from the river and wove them into a strong little basket. She covered it with sticky tar so no water could get inside.

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A heartbreaking watercolor scene at the edge of the Nile River at dawn. The mother, with tears streaming down her East African face, gently places her baby into the basket. The baby is wrapped in a soft blue cloth and sleeping peacefully. Pink and gold morning light reflects on the calm water. Tall green reeds surround them, hiding them from view.]

ENGLISH:

Early one morning, the mother carried her baby to the river. With tears in her eyes, she gently placed him into the little basket. She whispered a prayer: "God, please keep my baby safe." Then she set the basket gently on the water.

TIGRINYA:

Page 7

[PICTURE: A watercolor of young Miriam, a brave girl with dark curly hair and brown skin, hiding behind tall papyrus reeds at the river's edge. She peeks through the green stalks, watching the basket float gently on the blue water. Her eyes are wide and alert. Dragonflies hover above the water. The scene feels both tense and hopeful.]

ENGLISH:

Miriam, the baby's big sister, was so brave! She hid in the tall reeds near the river and watched the basket carefully. She wanted to make sure her baby brother was safe. Her heart was beating very fast!

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A grand watercolor scene showing the Egyptian princess walking down stone steps toward the Nile River with her servant women. She wears flowing white and gold robes and golden jewelry. Her servants carry towels and perfume bottles. The river sparkles in the warm sunlight. Lotus flowers float on the water. The princess is young and kind-looking with dark features.]

ENGLISH:

That very same morning, the princess of Egypt — Pharaoh's own daughter — came down to the river to bathe. She walked along the water's edge with her servant girls. The sun was warm and the river was calm and peaceful.

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A close-up watercolor of the princess pointing toward the basket floating among the reeds. Her face shows curiosity and surprise. One of her servant girls is wading into the shallow water to reach the basket. Ripples spread across the water. The basket is slightly open at the top, and a tiny hand reaches up from inside. Butterflies and birds surround the peaceful scene.]

ENGLISH:

Suddenly, the princess saw something strange floating in the reeds! "What is that?" she asked. "Go and bring it to me!" One of her servant girls waded into the water and carefully brought the basket to the princess.

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A beautiful watercolor of the princess opening the basket lid and looking inside with wide, surprised eyes. Inside lies a tiny baby boy with brown skin, crying with his little fists raised. The princess's face melts with compassion. Her servants gather around, gasping. Golden light falls on the baby like a blessing from heaven. The scene is emotional and tender.]

ENGLISH:

The princess opened the basket and gasped! Inside was a tiny baby boy, crying with little tears on his cheeks. Her heart filled with love right away. "Oh! This must be a Hebrew baby," she said softly. "The poor little one!"

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A watercolor showing the princess gently lifting the crying baby from the basket and holding him against her chest. She rocks him softly. Her gold bracelets glitter. The baby begins to calm down in her arms. Behind the reeds, we can see Miriam watching with wide eyes, her hand over her mouth in amazement. The scene is filled with soft pinks and golds.]

ENGLISH:

The kind princess picked up the baby and held him close. She rocked him gently until he stopped crying. "I will keep this baby," she decided. "I will take care of him and raise him as my own son." Her heart was full of compassion.

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A dramatic watercolor of young Miriam stepping out bravely from behind the tall reeds. She approaches the princess with her head held high, though her knees are shaking. The princess looks at her with curiosity. The servant girls stare. Miriam's sandaled feet stand at the water's edge. She is small but full of courage. Bright sunlight illuminates her like a spotlight.]

ENGLISH:

Then brave little Miriam took a deep breath and stepped out from her hiding place! She walked right up to the princess. "Would you like me to find a Hebrew woman to nurse the baby for you?" Miriam asked. How clever and brave she was!

She has the biggest smile on her face. In the background, the princess waits by the river holding the baby. Palm trees line the path. The colors are bright and hopeful — yellows, oranges, and sky blue.]

ENGLISH:

"Yes! Go quickly!" said the princess with a smile. Miriam's heart jumped with joy! She ran as fast as she could all the way back home to get her own mother. God's amazing plan was working perfectly!

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A deeply emotional watercolor reunion scene. The mother kneels before the princess by the river, receiving her own baby back into her arms. Tears of joy stream down her face. The princess smiles warmly. Miriam claps her hands together. The baby coos happily. Warm golden light envelops them all. It is a scene of pure miracle and joy.]

ENGLISH:

When the mother arrived, the princess said, "Take this baby and nurse him for me. I will pay you." The mother could barely believe it! God had given her baby right back to her! She held him close, crying happy tears.

TIGRINYA:

Through the window, stars twinkle in the night sky. The family prays together, hands raised in gratitude to God. The home is simple but filled with love and warmth.]

ENGLISH:

What a miracle! God heard the mother's prayers and kept baby Moses safe. Now the mother could love and care for her own baby at home, and get paid to do it! The whole family thanked God together every night.

[PICTURE: A watercolor of a young boy Moses, now about seven years old with East African features, walking hand-in-hand with the princess up grand palace steps. He wears fine Egyptian clothes — a white linen robe with gold trim. The palace is magnificent with tall columns and colorful wall paintings. Servants bow as they pass. Moses looks around with curious, bright eyes.]

ENGLISH:

When Moses was old enough, his mother brought him to the princess at the palace. Moses grew up as a prince of Egypt! He had fine clothes, good food, and the best teachers. But his mother had already taught him about the one true God.

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A watercolor of adult Moses, now a strong man with East African features and a short beard, standing alone on a hillside looking out over the land. He wears simple shepherd's clothing. Sheep graze around him. He looks thoughtful and searching, gazing at the sky. The landscape is golden-brown desert with distant purple mountains. A feeling of quiet waiting fills the scene.]

ENGLISH:

Moses grew into a strong, tall man. He left the palace and became a shepherd in the desert. He spent many years caring for sheep on quiet hillsides. All that time, God was preparing Moses for something very big and very important!

TIGRINYA:

[PICTURE: A dramatic and awe-inspiring watercolor of Moses standing before the burning bush on Mount Horeb. The bush blazes with brilliant orange, red, and gold flames, but its green leaves are not burning up. Moses has removed his sandals and kneels with his face toward the ground in reverence. Golden divine light radiates from the bush. The desert rocks glow warm amber.]

ENGLISH:

One day, Moses saw an amazing sight — a bush that was on fire but did not burn up! God spoke to Moses from the bush: "Moses! I am sending you to free My people from Egypt!" Moses was afraid, but God promised to be with him always.

TIGRINYA:

Huge walls of blue-green water rise on both sides, creating a dry path through the middle. Behind Moses, thousands of Hebrew people — men, women, children, elderly — walk forward with amazed faces. The sky is dramatic with clouds parting to reveal golden sunlight. East African features on all the people.]

ENGLISH:

Moses obeyed God and led all the Hebrew people out of Egypt! God did incredible miracles. He even split the Red Sea in two so the people could walk through on dry ground! God kept His promise and set His people free!

TIGRINYA:

Moses stands tall with his arms raised in gratitude. Miriam leads the women in a victory song. The sky is bright blue with white clouds. Flowers bloom at their feet. A rainbow arches overhead — God's promise of love.]

ENGLISH:

The people were free at last! They sang and danced and praised God. The baby who was once hidden in a little basket grew up to do amazing things for God. God had a big, beautiful plan for Moses from the very beginning!

TIGRINYA:

The brave child is standing up for a smaller child who looks scared. A golden glow surrounds the brave child like God's protection. Bright classroom colors — yellow walls, green plants on windowsills.]

ENGLISH:

Just like little Miriam was brave when she watched over her brother, you can be brave too! When you feel scared, remember that God is always with you. He gives you courage to do the right thing, even when it is hard.

Outside the window, rain falls and wind blows, but inside is warm and protected. A Bible sits on the nightstand. Soft golden light emanates from above like God's love surrounding the child. Warm oranges and golds dominate the palette.]

ENGLISH:

God protected baby Moses in the little basket on the big river. God protects you too! Wherever you go — at home, at school, or playing outside — God watches over you. You are safe in His loving hands, just like Moses was safe in that basket.
